Technical

In pattern Joong-Gun various movements requires changing from "L" stance to walking stance. In "L" stance the width is about 2" and the length is 1.5 shoulder widths measured from the back leg heel to front leg big toe, in walking stance the width is 1 shoulder width and length 1.5 shoulder width measured from the horizontal line of the back heel to front heel. Therefore walking stance is both wider and longer than "L" stance, in this move the front foot must move back to centre point (up part of sine wave) and then 40 degrees forward and out sideways (down part of sine wave) to accommodate for both increase in width and length. The reverse is for the move from walking stance to "L" stance.

You are now performing both elbow strikes (Palkop Terrigis) and elbow thrusts (Palkop Tolgis). The elbow strike is performed with front of the elbow in a circular motion and the elbow thrust is performed with the back of the elbow in a linear motion.
